Discussion

1. Slides
   - ftp://ftp.pwg.org/pub/pwg/BOFs/cwmp/cwmp-bof-dec-2011.pdf
   - Slide 6: Anil Thakkar (spelling mistake)
2. Draft Whitepaper
   - ftp://ftp.pwg.org/pub/pwg/BOFs/cwmp/white-cwmpmfdmodel10-20111205.pdf
   - Ira: Do we develop individual data models for each service and then do an umbrella document importing all of the service data models?
   - Can we shorten the abstract to a single paragraph - combine paragraph 1, item a, and the spirit of the rest. Move the existing text to the introduction
   - Page 29/line 541: "XML docment" - document misspelled
   - Q: WRT the modeling of power management via processor in PrintService subunits, will we have to rewrite this when the full MFD document/mapping is done?
     - A: No, same view as the overall system control service
     - May want to document the possible side-effects of setting (for example) subunit power calendar entries for a shared subunit, but do not restrict access
     - Make sure future data models can retain consistency/compatibility with PrintService data model (even if there are side-effects)
   - Throw MediaCol/MediaColDatabase out? Just leave simple Media/MediaType properties
   - PrintServiceCapabilities are read-write for supported and default values
   - How to protect against bad values in a set?
     - Printer can reject
     - No way to provide supported values operation, but maybe add "factory capabilities" table in CWMP data model to get supported values
